Facilitator: Marci Dowdy, Secondary Counselor, Glendale High School

All schools have “at risk students” and are looking for practical interventions to deal effectively with this population without enabling them or creating a culture of “victimization or entitlement.” Why can some people overcome adversity and land on their feet, while others are defeated and swallowed up by it? What are some of the contributing factors/characteristics that may help determine the response different individuals will have to the problems and obstacles we face throughout a lifetime? Are there effective ways to intervene and assist those who are or have experienced extreme adversity in their lives? This presentation will address these questions/issues and more while also helping us all recognize that trouble/adversity can also be viewed as an “opportunity in work clothes!” This workshop will make you rethink your view of the “at risk” student population, victimization and coping with adversity. Find out what YOU can do the next time you, a student in your classroom, or someone you know, experiences adversity.

School-wide Positive Behavior Support

Oasis Hotel - Sahara A

Suggested Audience: All Levels (General) MSCA

Presenters: Lois Jones and Carol Plumley, MSU Regional Consultants SW Regional Professional Development, Springfield, MO

Facilitator: Cindy Collins, Secondary Counselor, Nixa High School

A major advance in school-wide discipline is the emphasis on school-wide systems of support that include proactive strategies for defining, teaching, and supporting appropriate student behaviors to create positive school environment. Instead of using a patchwork of individual behavioral management plans, a continuum of positive behavior support for all students within a school is implemented in areas including the classroom and non-classroom setting. Positive behavior support is an application of a behaviorally-based systems approach to enhance the capacity of schools, families, and communities to design effective environments that improve the link between research-validated practices and the environments in which teaching and learning occurs. Attention is focused on creating and sustaining the primary (school-wide), secondary (classroom), and tertiary (individual) systems of support that improve lifestyle results (personal, health, social, family, work, recreational) for all children and youth by making problem behavior less effective, efficient, and relevant and desired behavior more functional.
