“Boomers to Zoomers”

Speaker: Ryan Underwood, TRI Leadership Resources

With five generations in today’s work force, the potential for productivity, innovation, conflict, and confusion has never been greater. However, there is a way to embrace the “generation gap” so you can effectively communicate and develop meaningful relationships with members of all the generations in the workplace and in everyday life.

Take a unique and insightful journey of how members of each generation think, behave, and engage. This session provides participants with a look at the generations that make up today’s work force, and provides effective tools on how to recruit, retain, motivate, train, teach, and manage each generation.
