Summary:

Character education has become one of the hot topics in education today and when someone mentions it we often find ourselves saying, "I can't add another thing to my plate!" Teaching positive character traits has always been of primary importance to family and consumer sciences teachers so we are not adding something new to our already over-loaded plate.

Our curriculum must be an essential part of any school character education program. This workshop will show that character education is an ongoing process and that Family and Consumer Sciences teachers can and should take the lead in this area. Techniques for incorporating character education activities and programs such as Character Counts! into the family and consumer sciences curriculum and FCCLA Will be presented, along with a variety of resources to enhance family and consumer sciences courses and character education.
