Title: When Life Throws You A Curve

Presenter: Kevin Brown, CEO of Shae Communications

Facilitator: Phyllis Graves

Summary: Kevin Brown is an author, wheelchair athlete and professional speaker. Kevin has addressed corporations and government leaders, as well as various professional associations, including educators and health professionals. Kevin Brown broke his neck in 1993, in an accident that almost took his life. He has touched the hearts of many ever since. Kevin's high-energy presentations have been called "the ultimate experience" and "extremely powerful."

Kevin uses humor and anecdotes to present strategies to overcome, not succumb, to life and its inevitable challenges. Those who attend this presentation will identify strategies to overcome obstacles, discuss the value of therapeutic humor, explore their creative potential, understand when to implement positive changes, discuss strategies to remain focused and on purpose, and list specific techniques to motivate students.

Topic 4: Code Blue: A tale of romance, murder, mystery, and . . . managed care!

Holiday Inn North - Cordova

Presenter: Kevin D. Stocks, Ph.D., C.P.A., Director of the School of Accountancy at Brigham Young University, Co-author of Code Blue

Facilitator: TBA

Summary: Code Blue is a textbook/novel designed as a supplement for any course in health science in which the instructor wishes to introduce students to the healthcare environment. Written in the form of a murder mystery, Code Blue tells the story of a CPA who is asked to serve as the administrator of a failing hospital; however, to be effective, he must quickly learn how the healthcare industry differs from other industries he has worked with. Through Code Blue, students are able to learn in context, have richer classroom discussions, and explore topics from more than one viewpoint. Learning from a novel is also more fun. Teaching helps include PowerPoint slides covering the major points from each chapter, a test bank, student exercises and questions, and lesson plans. Free desk copy for attendees.
