Ramona Symonette, RN, MSN

Mrs. Ramona Symonette is a Registered Nurse. She has been a nurse for 16 years. She received her education at Chamberlain College of Nursing. She began this journey in 2003. She traveled this road making several stops along the way. She entered into this profession as a Licensed Practical Nurse, her role and responsibilities increased after she transitioned into the role of a Registered Nurse. She is currently pursuing her Doctoral Degree in Nursing Leadership Management with an emphasis on "Fall Prevention Programs in the Elderly Population." Mrs. Symonette decided to pursue this area of study when she observed the injuries sustained related to this cohort falling. The lack of education per the licensed and unlicensed staff sparked an adventure to educate long-term care providers on the importance of identifying high fall risk residents and implementing the correct interventions. Mrs. Symonette anticipated completion is 02/2020. Mrs. Symonette has experience as a Career and Technical Educator, Director of Skilled Nursing, Rehabilitation Care Nurse, and a Certified Nursing Assistant Instructor and Examiner. She is currently a full-time nursing instructor at Lutheran School of Nursing in St. Louis, MO.

Mrs. Symonette has a passion for teaching. She enjoys observing the "light bulb go on." She is often seen sitting with a student(s) providing comfort, encouragement or laughter. She exemplifies a great leader. She extends her relationships beyond graduation by providing professional mentoring and guidance.

Mrs. Symonette believes that nursing is a reflection of one's heart. It defines your character as a person, and it also provides insight into your strength. The act of caring and providing care allows the recipient to feel God in the human form. Nursing is a display of love and compassion, and it takes a unique individual to pursue the opportunity to deposit that love.

Favorite Quote: "You should be the change that you want to see in the world." –Mahatma Gandhi

Mrs. Symonette is the founder of Train-Up-A-Child Ministries and Blessed Beyond Beauty Book Club, LLC. She is dedicated to supporting the inner city youth and women of all ages through mentor-ship. Mrs. Symonette enjoys spending time with her husband, three adult sons, and her dog Rhythm.

Dr. Marty K. Casey

Leading from position, excelling in power and walking in purpose, Marty K. Casey when entering the room is not only seen, her presence is felt! Having received recognition from super star Beyoncé for her philanthropy efforts serving as a mentor for 20 aspiring teens in the music sector for a group called Spreading The Love Singers. Marty K. Casey a super star in her own right, despite starting her very own Production company, creating, authoring and launching 3 National Plays, one featured at the St. Louis Fabulous Fox Theater, touring the world with several National Stage productions, and sharing the stage with Grammy Award winning artist, Marty still found time to start and grow the Show Me Arts Foundation, a non-profit 501c3 a Multi-Cultural Artistic Development Foundation for under-served youth, ages 5-18. To date Marty has serviced more than 2,500 children for free, providing them access to the arts and a venue to tap into their creative talents.

Marty a St. Louis Missouri native, was the first Black woman to receive a full scholarship in music as well as the first Black freshman class President at Missouri Baptist University in 1989. Having recently wrote, directed and produced her very own one woman show, titled It's Not A Man's World, which is based off her life and the benefits of being nurtured and mentored by 5 generations of strong women, Marty's list of accomplishments is a show stopper all by themselves. In April 2018 Marty became an Ambassador for orphan children to Shine Ministries in Uganda Africa. Additionally, August 10th, 2018 Marty, received another honor as Her Excellency Reverend Dr. Marty K. Casey CDSE through the Ambassador of the United Nations and she is the first female Ambassador in the Midwest to receive these highest honors from the United Nations.

Not only blessed with stage presence, Marty's vows to never forget her humbling beginnings when she sung backup for up and coming artist, she also became a touring vocalist in the internationally acclaimed group Golden Gospel Singers a 4-year tour, touring in both Germany & France. More evidence to further confirm Marty's trailblazing persona is supported by her success in becoming a member of the Actors Equity Association (AEA) in 2006, when she debuted in the longest running musical to date in Missouri titled Menopause The Musical. Twelve years of appearances with the show is what inspired Marty to write, direct and produce her one woman show, which is scheduled to return by popular demand November 2, 2018 at the Historical Mahler Ballroom.

In between stage plays, films, teaching a weekly acting class, mentoring, and leading her St. Louis based Network National Association of Black Female Executives in Music and Entertainment, Marty is most proud of her work with the Juvenile Detention Center where she teaches her latest program Un-GUN, which is designed to encourage mentoring, dance, and DJ engineering. A loving wife, mother and beloved grandmother of two boys, roles that requires no rehearsals or scripts, Marty's desire to set a positive example for her grandsons and others is the primary motivation for her drive to leave a legacy of advocacy and excellency in the arts.

Dr. Colette M. McLemore Dixon

Colette M. McLemore Dixon, PhD, is the Assistant Dean of Student and Alumni Affairs at University of Missouri St. Louis, College of Nursing and adjunct professor for the College of Education at the University of Missouri St. Louis. She has twelve years of experience in higher education. For most of her career, she has worked healthcare, which has included the offices of diversity and inclusion at institutions as Director of Diversity and Inclusion at Saint Louis University School of Medicine and Assistant Director at Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine. She earned her doctorate at Saint Louis University in Higher Education; Dr. McLemore Dixon has a master's degree in Personal Counseling, from Lindenwood University in St. Charles, MO and a Certificate of Contemporary Adult Spirituality from Saint Louis University. Dr. McLemore Dixon has received numerous awards in her twelve-year higher education career, but is most proud of her Women of The Year Award from Saint Louis University, Staff Member of the Year award from Ohio University and most recently, The National Society of Leadership and Success from the University of Missouri St. Louis. Dr. McLemore Dixon's research interest are in African American college student persistence; servant leadership and self-care for higher education professionals. As a recipient of a church-based scholarship, she knows the importance of engaging students in unconventional ways to find out where and who supports them in their journey and pursuit of a college degree.

Dr. Laurie J Punch

Laurie J Punch, MD, came to St. Louis in 2016 and has quickly immersed herself in understanding the city's history and current challenges. She has become a force of nature in revolutionizing trauma care both as an associate professor of surgery in the Acute & Critical Care Surgery division and outside of the hospital walls as the director of Power4STL, a non-profit that aims to reduce harm from violence through community health outreach. Dr. Punch founded the local branch along with Washington University surgery resident Dr. Erin Andrade and Jane Hayes, a medical student.

She has worked tirelessly to bring trauma first aid or "Stop the Bleed" classes to the WashU campus, St. Louis schools, and high-risk communities. She has taught over 2000 people life-saving bleeding control skills and has empowered them to change the narrative surrounding violence from one of helplessness to self-agency and resilience.

Power4STL hosts weekly trauma first aid classes in the city and county juvenile detention centers and offers internship positions to formerly incarcerated youth.

The organization recently opened a community health education outreach center on Delmar to provide trauma first aid training and offers a new program focused on learning "How 2 Heal" after violent injury. Dr. Punch is passionate about treating the wounds that are left by bullets, both physical and psychological.

Dr. Punch is associate professor and associate program director, general surgery residency at Washington University School of Medicine.
