Your Professional Voice

ACTEN Allows Opportunities for

Welcome back to another great year of Career and Technical Education! I hope the summer break allowed each of you the opportunity to return to your classrooms with renewed energy and enthusiasm that we all need to make a successful start to a new school year.

It was exciting to see so many of you attend the 2012 NCE Conference this past year in Kearney. There was much to learn from our keynote and session speakers. The conference gave all who with each other during numerous trainings and workshops. I always look forward to the chance to reconnect with friends and colleagues that I do not see during the school year. I also enjoy the opportunity to meet new members who have joined the association during the past year. Talking to non-members and explaining the benefits ACTE/ACTEN membership provides is also a highlight of mine...as I later see their names appear on the membership list. I believe that taking advantage of professional development opportunities, such as NCE Conference and ACTEN membership, provide us a fresh outlook on our chosen careers and help us to continually update and develop our programs.

I know that we offer high quality CTE programs in our schools and give our students the kinds of opportunities that lead to success in their future endeavors. The challenge of keeping our programs up-to-date can be overwhelming at times; however, it is also very exciting to be a part of those changes especially when student success is achieved. Membership in ACTEN and attendance at state, regional, and national conferences are an essential part of developing the "cutting edge" programs that are offered across our state.

I encourage everyone to look for opportunities of leadership and support within our state association and the divisions that support your individual programs. As ACTEN makes an effort to move forward, it needs the support of you, the career and technical educator. Without its members ACTEN could not exist, but with more members, we can increase our ability to accomplish the goals and challenges placed before us. With reflection upon your years of experience combined with insight in where career and technical education is headed, I believe you will feel excited and inspired by your professional association and proud to share that with your colleagues.

NEBRASKA FCCLA MEMBERS AND ADVISERS ATTEND NATIONAL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

One hundred ninety-nine delegates representing Nebraska Family Career and Community Leaders of America attended the National leadership Conference in Orlando, California, July 7-12, 2012.

Linsey Armstrong and Chandler Classen were elected to the ten member National Executive Council. Chandler is Vice-President of Development and Linsey is Vice-President of Public Relations. This is the first time Nebraska has had two representatives on the Executive Council and the first time that two students from the same chapter (Logan View) have served on the Executive Council.

One hundred students participated in the STAR Events, with 79 members receiving GOLD awards and 21 members receiving SILVER awards. The members are scored against a 100 point rubric, and Nebraska students always do a great job. Twenty-four of these students received 97 points or higher, and were top in their event.

Candace Cain, Adviser at Burwell High School, received the Master Adviser Award

Cathy Kloch, Adviser at Alliance High School, received the Adviser Mentor Award and the Spirit of Advising Award

Jan Brandt received the State Adviser of the Year Award.

2013 ACTEN Awards Program

It's time to start thinking about nominating ACTEN's outstanding members for one of the 2013 ACTEN awards. Selected nominees will be recognized for their contributions and service to CTE students, programs and the CTE community at the 2013 Nebraska Career Education Conference. Please consider nominating someone (or applying yourself) for one of the following awards:

ACTEN Outstanding Career and Technical Education Teacher - Divisional One teacher from each ACTEN division will be recognized. ACTEN Teacher of the Year will be selected from the divisional teacher award recipients. ACTEN's Teacher of the Year recipient will advance to the ACTE - Region V Teacher of the Year competition in 2014.

ACTEN Outstanding New Career and Technical Teacher – This award recognizes a CTE teacher who has taught a minimum of three years, but no more than five years for their outstanding contributions to education. The recipient will advance to ACTE - Region V competition in 2014.

ACTEN Outstanding Teacher in Community Service – This award recognizes a teacher with significant accomplishments and outstanding leadership in programs and activities that promote community involvement. The recipient will advance to ACTE - Region V competition in 2014.

ACTEN Outstanding Career and Technical Educator – This award recognizes CTE educators, other than full-time classroom/laboratory teachers. Recipient will advance to ACTE - Region V competition in 2014.

ACTEN Outstanding Service - This award recognizes an ACTEN member who has made significant contributions to the field of career and technical education at the local, state, regional and national level including honors or recognitions, professional offices and committee appointments, and publications.

Award information and nomination forms will be posted soon on the website (www.actenebraska.org). Look for the "ACTEN Awards" call out box on the main page of the website. You may also request award information and forms by sending message to acte.nebraska@juno.com. All nomination materials must be received by the ACTEN Office on or before March 1, 2013.

ACTEN's Past President, Jason Speck is chairperson of the 2013 Awards Committee. If you have questions, please contact Jason via e-mail at jspeck@esu15.org or call him at 308-882-5526 (home) or 308-882-4304 (school). Questions can also be directed to Lila Kulwicki at the ACTEN office by calling 402-423-6786, or sending a message to acte.nebraska@juno.com.
The Fall BMIT Standards Workshop Hosted by MPCC

The third of six Fall Business Marketing and Information Technology (BMIT) Standards Workshops was held on October 11 at Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Bonnie Sibert and Bev Newton, of the Nebraska Department of Education, partnered with Partnerships for Innovation (PFI) and Mid-Plains Community College business educators. Together they offered this professional development opportunity for secondary and postsecondary teachers in the educational content areas of business marketing and information technology. All teachers received the new course state standards for the career clusters of Information Technology, Arts/AV Technology and Communications, Hospitality and Tourism, as well as, the middle-level business and technology courses.

The afternoon session provided additional, valuable information. Topics included the development and opportunities of Business Career Academies, the educational materials and opportunities available through EducationQuest and the future professional development opportunities at conferences throughout the state of Nebraska. In particular, educators are reminded to attend the NCE Conference June 4-6 in Kearney and the MPBEA Conference (Mountain-Plain Business Education Association) June 9-12 in Omaha.

Business and information technology teachers from Maywood, South Platte, Valentine, McPherson County, North Platte, Cambridge, Dundy County Stratton, Hershey, Gothenburg, Cody-Kilgore, Chase County, Cozad, Sandhills Public, Ogallala, Perkins County, Sutherland, Wilcox-Hildreth, Alma, and Thedford were in attendance.

ARLINGTON, FILLMORE CENTRAL, WAUSA HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS EARN NATIONAL RECOGNITION IN FINANCIAL LITERACY

Three Nebraska high schools recognized as national 2012 Blue Star Schools

Nebraska students at three high schools have shown they have what it takes to manage their money.

Arlington, Fillmore Central and Wausa high school students' performance on the national Working in Support of Education's (WISE) financial literacy test earned their schools national recognition as 2012 Blue Star Schools.

Business teachers at Arlington High School, Fillmore Central High School and Wausa High School were recently notified that their schools would be recognized as Blue Star Schools on Nov. 6 in New York City at WISE's annual MoneyPower Conference for Financial Literacy.

A school must achieve a 75 percent passing rate on the test and have a majority of its students at a given grade take the test or the students who take it must earn an average score of 80 percent or higher. The award is significant considering that nationally only 157 schools were recognized as 2012 Blue Star Schools.

In recognition of their success, schools will receive a banner for their business departments and students will receive a certificate of completion for demonstrating knowledge of the personal finance tools needed to become financially capable young adults. Personal finance courses cover topics such as wise money management, personal financial planning, banking, saving and investment practices as well as credit and insurance.

In 2010, Nebraska personal finance teachers Teresa Feick of Arlington, Cindy Talley of Fillmore Central and Dawn Friedrich of Wausa participated in a Personal Finance Institute at Wayne State College and their students received free certification testing.

For more information contact Bonnie Sibert at 402.471.4818 or bonnie.sibert@nebraska.gov. For information on how schools can participate in the WISE Financial Literacy Certification Program, contact Working In Support of Education, David J. Anderson, executive vice president, 212.421.2700 or danderson@wise-ny.org.

Nebraska Career Educators Sharpen Skills at First-Ever Teacher Leadership Academies

Nearly 50 Nebraska teachers and guidance counselors attended the state’s first-ever Career and Technical Education Leadership Academy and Beginning Teacher Institute conferences for new and veteran educators.

Teachers attending the two conferences had a common focus: Teaching students the skills and knowledge vital for college and career success.

The Career Education Beginning Teacher Institute provided strategies to help new teachers improve the quality and rigor of their classroom instruction. Teachers were encouraged to build a collaborative statewide network of educators for future support.

"The Beginning Teacher Institute reenergized me for the school year," said Sarah Heideman, Lawrence-Nelson High School agricultural education teacher. "It made it even more clear how important Career and Technical Education is in Nebraska. The great things that are happening in classrooms across our state need to be lionized."

Anne Schmall, Scottsbluff Middle School family and consumer sciences teacher, said the teaching skills she developed and practiced at the workshop would make her an even more effective teacher. Schmall said connecting with other Career and Technical Education teachers was helpful. "I know that I am going into the upcoming school year better prepared...."

The second professional development workshop, the Career Education Leadership Academy, focused on developing the leadership potential of experienced educators by providing the resources and instructional strategies needed to ensure students are career and college ready when they graduate.

A key objective of the Career Education Leadership Academy was to develop a shared vision and to help participants gain new perspectives on how to communicate with government leaders and state legislators about career education, college and career readiness, workforce development and economic development.

Veteran educators developed a 2012-2013 individual plan-of-action with strategies for addressing the challenges their career education program faces in their school district and community to better ensure that students graduate college and career ready.

Lee Kallstrom, an Omaha North Magnet High School teacher in engineering technologies, said the academy provided “useful information packed into a usable, doable workshop” that would benefit his students, staff and the school’s administration.

Kristyn Harms, Norris High School agriculture, food and natural resources teacher, said the academy gave her an opportunity to expand her leadership skills.

Workshop presenters included Jill Casten, who has a doctorate of philosophy in Leadership Education and represented the American Farm Bureau Federation; Ryan Foer, who holds a doctorate of philosophy in Agriculture and Extension Education and is a University of Arizona assistant agricultural professor; and, Nebraska Department of Education career and technical education staff Cory Epler, Matt Kreifels and Carol Ringenberg. See page 10 for participant lists.
