

Greetings Health Science Educators!

Spring is blooming all around us. I live in Northeastern Pennsylvania and work in New York, and spring is just starting around here. I watch as my delicate crocuses are blooming purple and white, the tulips are sprouted and I await their blooms, and the daffodils are just about ready to flower. I also eagerly await my favorite springtime visitor: the hummingbird. Those sweet feathered friends remind me of all that is wonderful about life. Spring has a way of telling us that life is beautiful, and we are about to experience a fresh start, a fresh season filled with joy and sunshine. We get to sit outside in the fresh air, hopefully shedding our masks to bask in the sunshine and breathe the fresh air.

As you can see, I am so grateful for the renewal. Self-care is so important, and part of self-care is gratitude. I am a faithful servant, and I am so grateful for the beauty all around us. I am grateful for my time serving as vice president of ACTE Health Science Division, and I appreciate all of you as members. I hope to continue to serve ACTE in the future because I truly believe that this professional organization is a family and you as members are important members of this family. Together we can make a difference in the lives of our community, students and healthcare. Thank you all for supporting me as your vice president — I was so proud to serve all of you and ACTE.
