College and Career Ready Counselors: Resources for Resilience

NM Association of Career Technical Education Pre-Conference
Wednesday, September 8, 2021 (8:00 a.m.—11:30 a.m.)

Description:
Much of the work we do with students requires that we are prepared with a high level of standards of college and career knowledge. We ask that students be college/career ready, but are we as counselors’ ready to prepare our students for post graduate success? Do we have the necessary knowledge and resources to support the needs of our students? With limited budgets and an increase in educators leaving the profession, how are we staying current with college admissions updates and shifts in career opportunities?

Resiliency asks that we accept change as a part of the process, nurture a positive view of ourselves and bounce back from setbacks. How can we find the space for resiliency for ourselves when we don’t have the time, energy or resources while supporting our students? Let’s rewrite a new chapter that provides hope, connection and reliability not only for our students, but for ourselves.

Goals: Gain an understanding of how college/career knowledge for counselors and the level of professional development depends on access and funding. Understanding of current changes, trends and its impact on the work we do to support students and how we can stay current with the trends and how we remain resilient during difficult times and ongoing changes. Counselors will learn how to obtain free and reliable resources that will enhance the work they do with students.
